FOREWORD

I REALLY didn't want to get out a fourth series of "BRINGING UP FATHER." I was so pleased with the way the great American, fun-loving public fell over themselves to purchase the first, second and third series that, out of sheer kindness, I decided to publish no more books.

Besides, what do I care for money? Having made a clear profit of $100,000,000. on the first series, $248,000,000. on the second and $496,873,264.03 on the third, I have all the money that I need, for the present. Most of it to be sure goes for income tax, but, if the price of butter and eggs and bread and meat does not go any higher, I still have enough left to eat three meals a day for a year, at least.

So, said I, why take advantage of the public's good nature? I know the series is good—It's great!—I drew it myself. But a good pair of shoes for $3 is also a great institution, yet, as long as it doesn't exist, the public gets along without it. And I figured out that they could get along without No. 4.

But the publishers have convinced me that I am wrong. They have proven to me, that, after buying 900,000,000,000 copies of the "BRINGING UP FATHER" books, Nos. 1, 2, and 3, the public are clamoring for No. 4. They have proven to me that the clamor comes from the snow-clad peaks of Florida to the palm-groves of Maine and from the pine forests of Arizona to the deserts of Ohio.

So I give in. I always know when I'm wrong. Here is No. 4. It's a wonder. I only regret that I cannot induce the publishers to give it away, free. But you know how publishers are—they're a fierce bunch.
